Bands Picnic Was Great Success

OVER 2,000 PEOPLE HERE TO HEAR CONCERTS

Next Picnic To Be Held In Cheboygan, August 21

The semi-annual picnic of the bands of Northeastern Michigan Bands Association was held in Grayling last Sunday and it proved a most successful and enjoyable affair.

Nine bands responded to the invitation from Grayling band to be its guests on that day. The visitors began arriving at an early hour and with many of the musicians came their families and friends. It is estimated that there were fully 2,000 visitors in attendance.

The bands present were Cheboygan, Gaylord, West Branch, Oscoda County, Midland, Rogers City, and Grayling and Gaylord and Beaver-ton High school bands as guests. Alpena band was the only member of the association not in attendance. In all there were 275 musicians.

Grayling Tourist park, formerly known as the Conine Grove, made an ideal setting for such an occasion. It is only five blocks from the center of the business district, and thru it runs the East Branch river, and the place is nicely shaded with oak and maple trees. As the noon hour approached, picnic dinners were much in evidence and everyone seemed to be having a real enjoyable picnic time. Most of the musicians have known one another for many years and the occasion was more or less a reunion of old friends.

Dinners over, the bands took turns in playing concert selections from a temporary band stand. Each band played two selections and each was enthusiastically applauded. It was very evident that there were many excellent musicians in the ranks, and a corps of very able directors. This feature was greatly enjoyed by musicians and visitors alike.

Immediately following the last concert, the bands formed in line of march and began a parade. It led down Michigan avenue to the M. C. R. R. depot where ranks were broken and the several bands arranged into one immense band. Led by a corps of drum majors, all stopping high, the en masse band returned to the Tourist park playing "Religioso."

Upon arrival at the Tourist park and after the bands were arranged for an en masse concert, Mayor Charles O. McCullough gave a short address to the visitors, welcoming them most cordially, and telling them of some of the attractions to be seen in Grayling and vicinity. Mr. McCullough is also manager of the Grayling band and has always been a booster for that organization.

Ed. G. Clark, director of Grayling band and president of the Bands Association had charge of the afternoon concert, and announced the members on the program and introduced the directors. Each band director present took his turn in directing a selection. It was a varied and most delightful program and enjoyed by thousands of people.

During a brief intermission in the program a business session was conducted, and new officers elected. Cheboygan was selected as the place for the next concert, which will take place Sunday August 21st. Charles McCullough, director of the Cheboygan band, was elected president of the association to succeed Ed. G. Clark, Grayling, whose term expired at this time.

This was a big day in Grayling and one that will not soon be forgotten. The magnitude of the affair was quite a surprise to everyone. The officers and members of Grayling band are to be congratulated for the splendid manner in which they planned and managed the affair. It was a privilege to be the host to such worthy and delightful guests and we trust that the Bands will want to come to Grayling again at some future time.

OIL CO. EXPLAINS GAS TAX POSITION

To answer questions which Standard Oil representatives in this community are being asked, indicating much public interest, Mr. H. H. Keating, Saginaw, district manager for the company, yesterday gave out the following statement, explaining the Standard Oil position in contesting in federal court claims brought against it by the Michigan authorities for certain gasoline taxes:

"The question at issue in the gasoline tax case now before the federal court is simply one of technical interpretation of the Michigan law, especially of those provisions governing deductions for evaporation and other losses.

"Insinuations circulated to some extent that the company deliberately evaded payment of the taxes are ridiculous. In the period involved Standard Oil has paid the State of Michigan $30,222,179 in gasoline taxes, covering every cent it believed to be due under a proper construction of the law. By comparison the amount of $744,421 in dispute is small, though naturally of importance both to the company and to the state.

"Standard Oil has been the leader of the nation-wide campaign against gasoline tax evasion and has spent thousands of dollars of its own money to aid state authorities in adequate enforcement of gasoline tax laws.

"The claims of the Michigan authorities are based on a new interpretation of the gasoline tax laws after acceptance for nearly five years of payments based on a different interpretation. The law says very plainly that 3 per cent shall be deducted for evaporation and loss. The Attorney General and the Secretary of State have taken the position that deduction may be made for evaporation only. The company believes that the words 'and loss' in the statute provide for the other losses besides evaporation. Being compelled to pay the gasoline taxes long before it collects them from the public, the company loses interest on the money invested in the interval. It loses entirely taxes it has paid on gasoline sold on credit when the customer fails to pay. It loses the expense of collecting the taxes and accounting for them. These and many other losses, in addition to evaporation and shrinkage, bring the total loss up to the 3 per cent deduction prescribed, or more. There is also involved a question of whether the amounts handled by steamer and through port tank storage are taxable on the basis of the amount put in storage or the amount actually taken for distribution in Michigan. Unless the latter basis is used, shipments via port storage will pay a higher tax than shipments entering the state via railway tank cars.

"These questions are technical. The courts must decide how they should be settled.

"The company's desire has been at all times to pay the gasoline taxes in strict compliance with the law. If the court holds that the company's understanding of the law has been incorrect, due amendments will gladly be made. It will be expected, however, that the new interpretation will then be similarly enforced against all companies doing business in the state, and not against Standard Oil alone."

CLASS OF 17 PUPILS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Class Day.

A large crowd of parents and friends assembled at the high school auditorium Thursday evening to do honor to the seventeen young men and women who had completed their course of study in our public schools, and were presenting their Class Day program.

At eight-fifteen o'clock marching to music played by the high school orchestra, the class passed to the stage which had been very attractively decorated with baskets of beautiful garden flowers. Above and at the back of the stage the class motto "Not For School, But For Life" had been arranged in crimson and gold, the colors of the class.

Following a selection by the high school orchestra, Miss June Schofield gave the salutatory address. William Harrison, president of the class, welcomed the audience in a few well chosen words. The selection by the orchestra which followed was very beautifully rendered, led by Miss McAllister. The class history, read by Miss Irene Randolph, was a resume of the activities of the class, the four years spent in the senior high. The class prophecy which was a humorous story visioning the members of the class in the future was presented by Brad Jarmin. The high school quartet, Miss Gail Welsh, Miss Dorothy Roberts, James Miller and Brad Jarmin rendered a selection which was very well received. Miss Marie Brown read a clever class will—bequeathing the Juniors all the peculiarities, habits, qualities, etc., left by the retiring class. James Miller handed out a novel array of gifts in the giftatory, that brought a loud applause from the audience. The class poem was given by Miss Esther Cahoon. William Foley's Valedictory address was very well written and received hearty applause from the audience. The program closed with the class song which was directed and accompanied by Miss McAllister.

Valedictory.

(By William Foley)

It would be proper for me this evening to talk on any of a number of subjects. The peculiar thing about it is, that I am going to discuss no topic in particular. But what I have decided to do is to mention a few things of vital importance to us all.

"The educational system of America is striving to produce a distinguished leader. The graduation of high school and college students either adds or detracts from what has already been accomplished. Some European scholars think that our system of education is still an experiment. Past education in America has not been a success unless, at the present time, it produces a leader who can lead the nation in such a way that it may overcome the problems presented by unemployment, disorganized industry and depressed business. A great responsibility rests on the youth of today and an equal responsibility rests on the system of education.

"One may but compare the condition of the United States today and in normal times and see where now our national life lacks the breath of cheerfulness and hope. The only way to re-establish the hope and faith of the people is by the leadership of an individual who is not working for his own gain but for the good of the country. American leaders have conflicting ideas, at the present time, as to how the government should be handled.

"We are now as a nation at a low ebb as to the standard of citizenship. More courage, honesty, and virtue are needed by this nation in order to throw off the wave of crime that has so completely overborne the efforts of its government. There is little to be gained by lamenting the excess of crime among modern youth, unless some constructive plan and

HERBERT HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT

C. O. P. BIG SHOW AT CHICAGO WAS A MASTERPIECE

Greatest Interest Centered in Fight Over Prohibition Repeal Plan

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Chicago.—The Republican convention met, nominated Herbert Hoover as the party's candidate for President, and Charles Curtis as its candidate for Vice President, adopted a platform that embodies a modification of the prohibition amendment to the states as one plank, and adjourned.

That is what was accomplished by 1,153 delegates and 1,151 alternates, who traveled in going to and from the convention an estimated total distance of 2,308,000 miles at a cost for railroad fare of something over $46,000.

So far as the actual work of the convention was concerned, any reporter—even the cub—could have written it at any time during the past three months and possibly at any time during the past three years. But there had to be a convention, the properly designated delegates had to have their day in the spotlight, even though there was no contest for votes for a Presidential nomination and all had to pay their own railroad fare and hotel bills. Members of the national committee had to have the opportunity of sitting in the reserved seats at the big show. Distinguished guests had to have the opportunity of being known as distinguished guests. The assistant sergeants-at-arms and the ushers would never have been satisfied had they been deprived of wearing their badges, and even the peanut vendors had to have their chance to earn an honest dime.

The Nominations Are Made.

When the roll call of states for the naming of candidates began on Thursday the California delegation was the first one to respond and James Scott presented the name of Herbert Hoover. His naming of the President produced the greatest demonstration of the convention. When Oregon was reached the name of Doctor France was presented to be followed by the one ballot needed to name a candidate. President Hoover received all the votes with the exception of three or four for Coolidge, three for France, three for Blaine, of Wisconsin, and one for Senator Wadsworth, of New York.

Doctor France proved a magnificent candidate for the nomination. After L. R. Safford, of Portland, Ore., had presented in a modest way the qualifications of his state's champion for the Presidential job, Doctor France attempted to secure recognition from the chair, and when refused attempted to force his way onto the platform. The audience presumed he wanted to say something more in his own behalf, but that was not the good doctor's purpose. What he wanted to do was to withdraw his own name and present to the convention the name of the distinguished Massachusetts trout fisherman, Calvin Coolidge. The police took a hand in the affair, ejected the doctor from the platform, and the name of Calvin Coolidge was not mentioned except during the roll call for the Presidential nomination. Three of four delegates from as many states insisted upon voting for him.

With General Dawes out of the race there was practically no opposition to Vice President Curtis, and he received the nomination for second place on the ticket on the first ballot.

The Formalities Begin.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock there were close to one hundred thousand people milling about outside the Chicago Stadium. Inside, there were some fifteen thousand to occupy 20,700 seats. In the section reserved for delegates there was but one vacant chair; the one reserved for Senator Borah. In the alternates section they were all filled. The national committeemen and women were all present; the distinguished guests had arrived; the assistant sergeants at arms, all properly labeled with pretty badges, were in evidence, but all too many of that more than 7,000 seats provided for paying guests, as from $5 to $5 per guest, were vacant. The people of Chicago had failed to evidence their appreciation of the entertainment provided by a national Republican convention.

It was only 18 minutes after the scheduled hour of eleven when Senator Pease, national chairman, with a bang started for a gavel, called for order and announced to those who persisted in continuing their conversation, that their time was up, and he was now in charge and would temporarily, at least, run the show. Ordinarily, the next number on the program would have been the prayer, but before that in this case they must get through with the welcome by the Democratic mayor of the city. It would never do to include in the plea for Divine guidance, the actions or words of a Democratic mayor.

The keynoter, Hon. Lester Jesse Dickinson, of Iowa, made a good speech. The same quality of speech made before a Democratic national convention would have produced hours of bolsterous demonstration, but the Republicans are more given to voting than to shouting. Though Senator Dickinson's speech did not produce any number of wild outbursts, any prolonged parade of howling delegates. It did make a profound impression on the assembled Republican host.

While looking on at a Republican national convention seems like watching the operations of a well oiled and perfectly geared machine, it is not as simple as it seems. Jones and Smith and Brown and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler all have a chance to air their views, but all of this is in committee meetings held in hotel rooms. It is the final result that is brought to the floor of the convention and goes into the record as the unanimous verdict of the assembled delegates.

The Wednesday morning session was another of those formal occasions that did not attract the crowd. It took ten minutes to listen to the report of the organization committee and an hour to listen to the speech of the permanent chairman, Representative Snell, of New York. But it was a good speech and appealed to the delegates. His first mention of the name of President Hoover started a half hour demonstration that would have been unanimous had Oregon joined in. But that state was loyal to former Senator France, of Maryland, the adopted favorite of Oregon, and its banner was not carried in the parade of states.

Chicago Sees the Show.

Chicago went to the convention Wednesday night, and Chicago was wet. When Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, read the minority platform report, demanding straight repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, the thin drops of applause came from those $1 to $5 seats the Chicago people had paid for and the assistant sergeants at arms. The rather mild delegate demonstration was led by Wisconsin, and joined in by many states, including prohibition Maine. When previously the majority report was presented, providing for modification, with federal control of the liquor traffic, Kansas led the demonstration, but did not receive any appreciable support from the Chicago audience.

Wednesday night it looked like a convention. The vacant seats that had been so noticeable during the Tuesday and Wednesday morning sessions, were all filled. All of the Chicago aunts and uncles and cousins, Republican and Democratic, had turned out to hear what the C. O. P. was going to do about prohibition, and

PUBLISHERS TO VISIT ALPENA

"THE CITY AMONG THE LAKES" TO BE HOST TO EDITORS NEXT WEEK

The annual summer meeting of the Michigan Press Association will be held at Alpena on Thunder Bay, June 30, July 1 and 2. Alpena is one of the most hospitable towns to be found anywhere, and the largest in northern Michigan. With a country ideally situated on the shores of Lake Huron and Thunder Bay, it has every advantage to present visitors looking for a quiet summer retreat, with all the outdoors anyone wants, with fishing—the best, golfing, bathing, boating, tennis, and every outdoor sport at your doorstep, regardless of where you may pitch your tent or rent a cottage, and at rates surprisingly low.

Long Lake, eight miles north of Alpena, will be the gathering place for the visitors. This body of water is from a mile and a half to two miles wide, and nine miles long. Several resorts dot the south and east side of the lake. There is the Oak Grove Hotel, operated by G. T. Montroy, that can care for nearly a hundred people.

The Long Lake Lodge adjoins the hotel property. This was formerly the Alpena Golf Club, and has a nine-hole golf course in connection, with ample sleeping and dining room accommodations. It is operated by Walter Blanton.

Many people desire a cottage so that they may take their entire family, or on the east side of the lake here is Tebo's Resort, operated by Charles Tebo. Mr. Tebo has about a dozen of the most comfy cottages you ever saw. Each one has three bedrooms, a fireplace and a kitchen.

Next to Mr. Tebo's is the Synour Resort, with cottages comparable to Mr. Tebo's. In front of both these resorts is one of the finest bathing beaches in Michigan—pure white sand with a gradual slope of two hundred feet before it becomes deep.

The Michigan Press Association, which includes nearly 300 weekly newspapers of the state, is first of all "Michigan Minded" for it realizes that Michigan is one of the most desirable states in the Union, with every advantage to be found elsewhere, and many besides.

Alpena in itself is one of the leading towns in the state and does not depend upon its resorts for summer business.

About 4,000,000 tons of limestone is quarried at Alpena annually. One of these quarries operates electric cars, which are operated from a central station, and it is amusing to watch them start, stop, back up, switch, and load without apparent human aid.

With the famous Turtle Lake Club, which is perhaps responsible for most of the deer propagation in northern Michigan, and its 25,000 acre state forest, Alpena has everything to offer tourists, resorters, and home seekers.

The visit of the publishers to Alpena will be featured by numerous trips of inspection, a banquet at which Malcolm Bingham, editorial director of the Detroit Free Press will be the chief speaker, numerous contests, and a big fish dinner as a climax to the three days of fun and recreation.

MCKEIGHAN AGENTS VISIT GRAYLING

LOOKING OVER FENCES "MAC" IN RACE TO STAY

National conventions over, now will come the grind of convincing the people as to how to vote. Soon there will be emissaries of the U. S., the governor of the state, senators, representatives of the legislature, congressmen, sheriffs, prosecutors and the rest of the flat right down the line. All will be entitled to a respectful hearing. They will want the people to know their candidates, and the people will welcome information about the men or women who desire to administer our public affairs.

Among the first to arrive were Capt. George H. Maines, Flint, and N. J. Whelan, Holland. Mr. Whelan was for several terms a member of the State legislature, and one term speaker of the house. Everyone in Western Michigan knows "Nick" and whenever he has anything to say everyone listens.

Well, they say that McKeighan is in the race to stay regardless of other entries. They hold up McKeighan's 14 points for our consideration and for other candidates to shoot at.

We informed Mr. Whelan and Mr. Maines that for McKeighan had grown cold since the latter's indictment for fraud and for "higher-up" bootlegging, the fellows who usually go free while fellows who make a little beer-for-home consumption and possibly for sale to keep his wife and little children in clothing and from starving to death, sit in jail for months and finally go to prison, etc.

But oh, no! We got McKeighan wrong. He is pure and holy and has been the victim of persecution on the part of the Flint Journal, Moti and other Flint citizens. These latter couldn't handle McKeighan, so judging from the inferences offered by Capt. Maines, they are trying to "get" him in some other way. He said McKeighan had been arrested during every term of his incumbency as Mayor of Flint, but they can't get anything on him. The Flint Journal, Mr. Moti and others, according to Capt. Maines, didn't like McKeighan because he was able to thwart any of their plans that were not "in the interest of the working and the poorer classes." So they tried to persecute him and he was always able to get free. Perhaps McKeighan was too slippery for them; who knows?

Anyway, McKeighan is out after the nomination for governor in spite of any stain there may be upon his character due to the trials he just faced in federal court, and for which he was acquitted.

BUSINESS IS LOOKING UP

says the San Marino (California) Tribune in its issue of June 17th.
That is just the information we have been hoping to hear from far-away parts of the country.

Business is looking up right here in this part of the country too. True it is in a small way but it IS looking up.

Small business institutions show signs of improvement everywhere.
And it is from the smaller industries that we must hope for relief from the depressive times we have been enduring for the past two years. To look for large industries to start the wheels would be futile. Automobile industries are about the first ones that come to mind when we talk about big business. The men at the heads of these industries are just as anxious to speed up production as we are to have them, but who can buy their products? It's the wage earners from small businesses they must look to for a market.

And right there is where prosperity must begin. The progress is going to be slow but we believe it will be equally positive. Every small industry in the land should be encouraged to keep going. Small but steady wages coming from small industries spell stability. Earnest effort from those who may be in position to foster small industries and faithful service on the part of wage earners indicate an industrial tide that promises to swell to large proportions.

General Dawes says that "prosperity has turned the corner and it is due to the efforts and successes of small business." Don't look to big business to pull us out of the hole. Instead let's foster our small institutions—acres of diamonds right in our own dooryards.

The Tribune (San Marino) in its editorial says:

At last there would seem to be a turning of the tide, and a definite up-trend to business.

True, many of us in our determination to turn the tide, if possible, saw prosperity coming around the corner in advance of its real appearance—nevertheless the evidences of a favorable turn are so obvious that they may not be ignored.

The Bank of America instituted a Back to Better Business movement recently and quite persistently, and report an increase in deposits in their banks of over $30,000,000 during the last few weeks.

Moreover, the recent legislation enacted by Congress in the interests of the release of untold millions of capital in the rehabilitation of industry and trade, is having its effect, and is certain to remove that "worried look" from the face of humanity.

With the augmented powers and jurisdiction of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and other favorable legislation, there should be a great influx into the fields of industry and a corresponding exodus from the ranks of idleness.

Here in California the elixir of life is slowly but surely coursing through the veins of business, giving assurance that the effects of the awful anaesthetic are passing away,
and will soon be gone entirely.

Salesmen, who feel the pulse of trade every day, are saying that confidence is coming back and business is beginning to feel the quickening effects of the return of confidence.

Let's go out to meet the returning prodigal—let's kill the fatist cat, put a ring on the finger of the wanderer (not a hook on his nose), and give him his rightful place in the household once more.

very pleased to know Mr. Peterson is an enthusiastic booster for our club. We are also indebted to Miss Dorr, the Crippie-McNeven dance band and the Hanson Hardware.
Without their assistance we would have found it impossible to carry out our plans.

The memberships in the Association were never at such a low ebb as they are at the present. We feel as though there are many who can afford to pay their dues that are not giving very much thought to the real work of the association. Our mission is to do something annually for the graduating class and the school whenever possible. Considering the worthy cause for which we are striving, the small number who are paying dues in this society is almost stunning. Many towns, smaller than ours in population possess powerful and well-financed organizations that boast of members well up in the hundreds who are annually supporting and prolonging their Alumni associations. We are attempting to lay the foundation for an organization that most towns are proud to have.

Realizing that times at the present are tough, we would appreciate it if those graduates would turn out to our Alumni meetings and offer suggestions which would enable us to raise funds to carry out our work.

We as graduates of Grayling High School do not owe it to any individual in particular to help and assist the Association. Each one of us owe it to ourselves, and the school that equipped us with knowledge that helps us daily in solving our problems. We also owe it to our community as citizens. Active members of the association are contemplating meetings in the near future to lay plans for an entertainment that will assist in squaring our debts.
Whether or not you can afford to pay your dues, we would like your presence at these meetings for your ideas and the many ways in which you can help may be worth dollars to us.

A stock market report states that there is little activity in commodities. We can now eat without looking.

MRS. CHARLES OSMUN PASSED AWAY

Mrs. Charles Osmun of Tower, Michigan, who will be remembered as Miss Rosanna Sachs, passed away at Mercy Hospital last Sunday morning at 3:45 o'clock after a short illness. Mrs. Osmun entered the hospital Friday, having been brought from her home in Tower that afternoon. The passing of the young wife and mother was a severe shock to her family and friends as her illness and death came most unexpected.

Rosanna Sachs was born in Lawiston, Jan. 5, 1895, and came to Grayling with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Eckensfeld in 1911. She entered Grayling High School at that time and graduated with the class of '18.

The funeral was held Tuesday, Rev.
J. L. Culligan celebrating a high mass of requiem at eight o'clock, and services were held at the Eckenfeld home at two o'clock. Fr. Culligan officiating. Interment was in Elmwood cemetery and the pallbearers were Francis and Joseph Brady, Howard Schmidt, William Harrison,
Bernard Callahan, Joseph Kesseler.

Surviving the deceased are her husband, three children, Jean, Buddy and Barbara, her parents, one sister Mrs. Ben Delamater Grayling, and one brother, Howard Sachs, Detroit.
Those from out of town in attendance at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs.
Howard Sachs, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Osmun, Sr., Mr. and Mrs.
Kendall, Mrs. Wickersham, all of Tower; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kohoe, Lake Orion.

The sympathy of many friends is extended to the remaining members of the family in their sad bereavement.

GRAYLING LOSES
TO GAYLORD

Gaylord and Grayling waged an interesting battle on the local diamond Sunday, the former winning, 10-7. Although out-hitting their northern rivals 13-11, Sorenson kept the hits fairly well scattered in all but the 7th inning.

"Babe" Leurant found the comeback trail a thorny path as the Gaylord Indians pounded him for eight hits and seven runs in six innings.
The re-vamped infield failed to "click" and double-plays were given a wide berth.

This game saw some of the old idols of Grayling's sandlot, Harry Reynolds playing second base. Otto Nelson played centerfield. He contributed two singles while "Babe" banged out a single and a double in three trips to the plate.

One of the largest crowds to witness a ball game at the local park for quite a number of years, contributed enough to pay all expenses.
The team thanks you for your loyal support and hopes to see you at all future contests.

RECOMMENDS WINDSTORM IN-SURANCE CO., HASTINGS

Al. H. Webber, Editor Cheboygan
Observer, Has Known This Big Company 40 Years

The following clipping is taken from a recent issue of the Cheboygan Observer and as the Michigan Mutual Windstorm Insurance Co., of Hastings, is publishing special announcements in this paper we are pleased to pass it along to our readers.

"In another column in this paper appears a large advertisement for the Michigan Mutual Windstorm Insurance Company. This company has a lot of policy holders in our part of the state, and should have a lot more, because it is one of the strongest companies of the kind in existence and has never failed to treat its policy holders fair and square. Already it has paid out considerable sums to losers of property by wind in our section and in every instance the settlement has been fair and just. The editor of the Observer knew and dealt with the officers of this company nearly 40 years ago, as he was then employed on the Hastings Banner where most of their printing was done, and he is advising dealing with the company because of his personal knowledge of their way of doing business and the stability of the company."—Cheboygan Observer.

great deal towards assisting the preventing fires and conserving game.

that it has been possible to dismiss the tax collector with the words
"Charge it, please."

Religion, Ignorance, and Happiness

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

It was the unusual thing in the country neighborhood in which I grew up for anyone to have been to college. The education of our neighbors was pretty limited. Even the teachers who presided over the district school which I attended had seldom been farther in the pursuit of knowledge than the training afforded by the eighth grade. One teacher I recall had had a year or two of residence in an academy of middling grade, but he was an exception.

The best-educated man in our community, so far as formal training was concerned was McManis.

He accepted no definite religious faith, but was, in fact, distinctly agnostic in his beliefs.

He married when approaching forty and had a large family of children. The two things that interested me in the bringing up of his children was first that he tried from the outset to inculcate in them very distinct and orthodox religious faith, and second that, although he was abundantly able to do so, he gave none of them an education beyond the elementary training which was afforded by the rural schools.

"I want my children happy," he explained, "and religion gives one a certain stability in this world and a definite assurance for the next. It is a stability and an assurance which I do not myself enjoy. Even if it is all hogwash, I should rather believe it and were happy than to live in the uncertain state of mind which I am in."

It wasn't truth he was after, it was happiness.

"As to education," he said, "the less you know, the happier you are. Knowledge makes men dissatisfied, discontented."

Here was a man widely read, well-trained, well grounded in the principles of the church, but he had no faith, he had seen no vision as new ideas and new worlds opened up to him. To him knowledge was not power, nor religion an inspiration.

POTPOURRI

Air Traveler

The Yellowlegs, a common American snipe, travels approximately 10,000 miles in its migration and is said to be the greatest air traveler among birds. It migrates from the Arctic circle, where it spends the summer, to as far south as Argentina. It has black-and-white markings, long yellow legs, and is found among the lowlands and marshes.

Cost Her $4.25 To Reduce 65 Pounds

"Worth It," Miss Bates Says.

If you're young and fat read what Miss Bates of Beese, Iowa, has to say about Kruschen Salts—if you are middle age or old Kruschen shows you the way to lose fat the SAFE way.

"I took one bottle of Kruschen Salts a month for five months. It amounted to $4.25 and I reduced 65 lbs. but it was worth it. Imagine just 22 years old and weighing what I did. I could not enjoy myself as other girls did. I could not get the clothes I wanted. I think it is wonderful the results Kruschen Salts give."

To lose fat the safe, sane way—take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—eat less fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a far less costly but a small sum lasts 4 weeks. Get it at any drug store in the world—but be sure for your health's sake to ask for and get Kruschen Salts. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Diverse Ways by Which Seeds Reach Fresh Soil

Plants cannot move themselves, but they make sure that their seeds are carried to fresh soil. The dandelion and the thistle harness the wind by making it waft the seeds which contain their seeds; the sycamore and other trees have seeds that are tiny airplanes.

The cherry, the blackberry, and countless other fruit trees press birds into their service. The hard seed is surrounded by appetizing pulp. The pulp is meant to be eaten, but the seed cannot be digested. The gorse bush anticipated by thousands upon thousands of years man's invention of the gun. Its seed pods are so devised that hot sunshine raises the pressure within them until they burst with loud pops, scattering the seeds far and wide.

Then there is the extraordinary cleverness with which plants have made insects their servants for the purpose of fertilizing. Many plants employ their own special insect and no other. Their flowers are designed to attract it, and their shape is such that they fit no other insect.

Drug That Impels User to Reveal Hidden Facts

If the discovery of Dr. Erich Lindemann comes into general use, a patient will no longer be able to deceive his doctor. Not that ordinary patients do so; the troublesome ones are those with diseased minds who will not tell the doctor the facts he must know in order to help him.

Doctor Lindemann appears to have made his discovery partly by accident. He was experimenting with the use in certain mental diseases of a drug known as "sodium amytal," which, when given in sufficient doses, produces deep sleep. He found that if only a small dose was given something quite different happened. The patient did not even become sleepy; instead, he became communicative.

The most striking effect, the doctor tells us, is a desire on the part of a patient to tell all about his personal matters, big and little. He would keep hidden. He shows a friendly attitude towards others and has himself a feeling of self-confidence and serene contentment.

Standard Words

According to a definition given by Doctor Vizetelly, a standard English word is one that has been used by a master of classic English—one of the great authors of the day or of days gone by—that is accepted as good English by educated writers and speakers of our time. Foreign terms that are not naturalized, such as words derived from the French, German, Dutch, Spanish, Italian, Russian, etc., and printed in dictionaries, preceded by (Fr.), (Ger.), (D.), (Sp.), etc., are not standard English words; nor are dialect, provincial, Scottish, colloquial, slang or vulgar words considered so. The standard English of today is English used by present-day writers and speakers who are competent to set the standard. It is necessarily English acceptable in polite society.

Famous Irish Race Course

The word "cragh" derives the ancient Gaelic culture. Cragh means race course and also low-lying or marshy ground. The double meaning is understandable in that flat land would naturally be selected for a race course. The Curragh of Kildare is one of the most famous race courses in the world. Beside the River Liffey, near Dublin, it is the scene of the Irish derby and many other famous races. Also, the great Dublin horse fair is held there annually. In the Tenth century the king of Leinster granted the Curragh of Kildare, which embraces some 4,300 acres, to St. Bridget, who gave it to the people as a common. For 1,000 years it has been preserved as an open land.

Cobalt From Outer Realm

Cobalt is one metal never found in the pure state among earthly things. The only source of pure cobalt in the natural state is the outer spaces beyond the earth, for it is only in meteorites that it has been discovered. The metal is very tenacious, but has no commercial use, except in certain brilliant paints, such as cobalt blue and cobalt green. It is used in the form of chloride, also in the preparation of so-called disappearing inks. When at all moist, ink based on cobalt chloride is invisible, but when dried out before a fire, it will come out in a brilliant blue.

American Military Genius

It is curious to observe, since the war of 1914-1918, the enormous and ever-growing prestige of the American generals of our Civil War. It was may judge by expert foreign military opinion, five Americans in one local war stand higher in military annals than any general from any country in the war between nations. I know nothing about this myself; I am merely recording the opinions of experts—William Lyon Phelps in Scribner's Magazine.

Higher Things Than Money

Money is only part of our compensation for life's labor. True, money is necessary for one's physical existence. But it never has and never will buy the finer things of life. Do something well, and you will find joy in the heart as well as in the pay on remittance—Grit.

Has Little Meaning

In Spanish America "gringo" is a name commonly applied to persons of English speech, especially Americans. It is a gibberish word.

Ancient Sculpture

A well-preserved marble group, apparently the work of a Greek sculptor of the pre-Christian era and representing Hecuba Troy with Paris, was unearthed near Athens, Romania.

THAT'S the way your money goes! The moment your back is turned, Engine-Waste and her greedy crew start picking off the gasoline dollars. This needless loss to the morning public each year runs into millions.

When you find knocks, slow pick-up, dilution of oil, slow starting, or gummy valves hampering your motor, it means one thing: the gasoline you are using is not giving satisfactory performance. Fuel is being wasted. Engine-Waste and her gang have you "on the spot".

Prevent this Engine-Waste in your car, or your miles-per-gallon average will be in for a big drop... your costs will hit a new high.

Change to a perfectly balanced fuel that is specially produced to rout Engine-Waste... Shell Gasoline.

This gasoline is made possible only by a remarkable process, plus many years of continuous improvement in refining and blending. Every lot of it must prove its efficiency in actual engine tests before it can leave the refinery.

That's why we can be so positive when we say that Shell assures you greatest mileage and top-notch performance every inch of the way.

Turn in today and fill your tank with Shell. Prove to yourself that Shell cuts Engine-Waste to a minimum and saves you money.

Real Daughters of the Revolution

Miss Sarah Pool, eighty-six, and Mrs. Mary Newson, eighty-two, whose father, Henry Pool, served for four years with Georgia troops in the war for American Independence, are shown here at their home in Glascock county, Ga. The Daughters of the American Revolution have established the fact that there are only seven persons now alive whose fathers fought in the revolution, with Georgia claiming two of them. Their father was married three times, and they are the children of his third wife. When the younger, Mrs. Mary Newson, was born, her father was ninety years old. Both are members of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Homemakers' Corner

By Home Economics Specialists
Michigan State College

Four simple causes are the reasons for most of the unsatisfactory results in home dyeing according to Miss Irene Taylor, clothing specialist, Michigan State College. These are: use of too small container to allow sufficient coverage in bath, uneven distribution due to tiresome stirring methods and consequent possible spasmodic agitation, improperly mixed dye bath, and use of hard water.

Since the stirring process is one of the most important steps, washing machines have been found to be efficient. An average of 10 to 15 minutes longer than the time required in directions for hand stirring is required when the washer is used. Care should be taken to run the machine to mix the dye bath thoroughly before putting in the fabric. Instructions concerning the adding of salt, vinegar, or whatever other ingredients for setting color is advised should be observed carefully. Always wet the material before putting it into the bath and, if it is soiled, wash and rinse thoroughly. Any spots that will not be covered by the dye should be removed first. Enough bath should be used to float the material and sufficient for the action of the washer, dissolving the dye thoroughly before adding to the bath.

Perhaps the most difficult color to procure is an even and permanent black. To insure the most satisfactory results, the material should be dyed with the complement of its original color to produce a grayed tone, and then dyed black. A light color can never be obtained over a dark one. For permanent dyeing, the bath should be kept just at the boil, while for tinting the water may be lukewarm, about 100 degrees F. Cottons may be hung on the line in the shade or on the clothes rack, changing the position occasionally. Silks, rayons, and wools should be rolled in a bath towel, not allowing the fabric to roll upon itself, and should be pressed on the wrong side while still damp.

PROHIBIT MECHANICAL BERRY PICKERS

In an effort to conserve the wild blue berry crop growing on state owned lands in Chippewa County the Conservation Commission has issued an order preventing the use of all mechanical devices for picking berries.

The blue berry crop in Chippewa County has become an important source of income for local residents. A large part of the crop is taken from state owned land.

Mechanical devices such as rakes, cradles and automatic pickers tend to lower the quality of the fruit, and to decrease production since green berries are destroyed at the first picking, complaints reaching the Department have said. Under the Commission's order the use of mechanical devices will mean arrest with a resulting penalty of not more than $100, jail sentence of not more than 90 days or both.

Mechanical devices for picking berries are also being prohibited in the Marquette National Forest in Chippewa County.

EELS 50 YEARS OLD

Eels, planted in Michigan waters a half century ago have not entirely disappeared and some 50 year old specimens still live in the waters of a lake in Otsego County, according to Dr. Carl L. Hubbs, Director of the Michigan Institute for Fisheries Research.

Specimens of eels taken from Sherman Lake, Kalamazoo County in October, 1926, were generally believed to have been the last surviving in Michigan waters, until Dr. Hubbs received a specimen taken from the Otsego Lake.

The specimen obtained from Otsego Lake was submitted by W. H. Green, Elmira Township, who planted the eels in this lake 44 years ago.

A half century ago eels were planted in many of the lakes of Michigan. They were brought from the Atlantic Coast as "elvers" the young stage of eels reached when they ascend the streams from the ocean. The eels were not native to the Great Lakes, because they cannot pass by Niagara Falls on their upward migration from the sea.

Since eels do not spawn in fresh water, any eels now remaining in Michigan are approaching the half century mark in age, according to Dr. Hubbs. The rather small eels occasionally seen were not young, but were the males which do not reach a large size, and which do not migrate far up streams from the ocean.

The occurrence of males in Michigan lakes is itself evidence that the eels remaining alive today are of the old plantings, he said.

ABELARD AND HELOISE

IN THE Paris cemetery of Pere-Lachaise, on summer Sundays, the sentimental still lay wreaths on the tomb of two lovers, who died almost 800 years ago but are here and here of a love story which still lives on to the famous "Love Letters of Abelard and Heloise."

Abelard was a brilliant and handsome young professor who by the time he was twenty-five was attracting thousands to his open-air lectures for the rights of the individual to make his own intellectual investigations. In time he came to verbal blows with the venerable St. Bernard himself, who stood for traditional authority and strongly condemned the young radical.

In 1117 Abelard was hired by the canon of the Episcopate school in Paris to tutor his beautiful niece Heloise, then just seventeen. The pair fell madly in love and fled together to Brittany, where there was a secret marriage. The relatives of Heloise followed the couple, found and separated them, and the canon further hired men to invade Abelard's rooms and brutally mutilate him. Abelard in despair entered the monastery of St. Denis, and Heloise, at his instigation, became a nun and vowed to remain a virgin.

Ten years later Heloise learned that his retirement had not brought her lover peace and wrote him the first of five famous love letters in which she revealed the tragedy of two noble souls who tried to forget each other but could not. Abelard died in 1142; Heloise twenty years later.

As Old as His Creed

The story is told of a young rector who, after a sermon on the divine character of the church, was approached by an elderly lady who said wistfully: "How dare a boy like you talk to us in this manner?"
The young man, who still wore his surplice, drew himself up and replied with crushing dignity: "Madam, when I have this I am 1,900 years old."

(Of the two kinds of corpuscles in the blood, the red greatly outnumber the white. A drop of blood about the size of a pinhead contains some 5,000,000 red corpuscles and 6,000 white ones. The red are coin shaped but thinner in the center than at the edges. The white corpuscles are larger and shaped like tiny balls.)

Wrong Ideas About Beavers

There are many popular notions about beavers which are untrue. In spite of common belief, beavers do not use their tails as a rudder, do not use big logs in building their dams, do not and cannot drive stakes, cannot throw a tree a given way, finish their lodges on the outside with sticks, not mud.

SMALL GAME BAGS

The northern Michigan hunter has just as good a chance of bagging a partridge during the fall hunting season as the southern Michigan hunter has of taking a pheasant, according to data compiled by the Educational Division of the Department of Conservation.

The Division recently conducted a game census through information furnished by biology students in the various high schools of the state. Compiled figures show that 822 small game hunters in the southern peninsula north of Townline 16, generally considered as partridge territory, took 1,589 partridges during the 1931 season, an average of 1.8 birds per hunter.

In the pheasant area of Michigan, or south of Townline 16, 3,965 small game hunters killed 4,584 pheasants, or an average of 1.3 birds each.

Rabbit hunters in the upper peninsula have the most success, if the number of reports received can be considered as a cross-section for the state. North of the Straits, rabbit hunters averaged 17 rabbits each. South of Townline 16 the average was eight to a hunter.

Fifty-three per cent of 612 deer hunters living in the upper peninsula killed their buck last November. The average for 1,406 deer hunters throughout the state was 48 per cent or 677 deer.

The cards returned by the schools listed the "take" for 5,110 small game licenses. On these licenses 55,997 rabbits, 818 raccoons, 4,065 ducks, 9,403 squirrels, 451 opossums, 384 woodcocks, 252 prairie chickens and 4,867 pheasants were reported. The 1,724 trout fishermen reported took 61,788 trout.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

—With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help. But what? Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation, specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child suffer—and your own—be troubled. A single dose of Castoria will give your little bowels a restful, healthy movement and your child will be comfortable. Castoria always keeps the bowels regular.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST CIVIL SERVICE "COACHING" SCHOOLS

Washington, D. C., June 22, 1932—The following statement is made by the United States Civil Service Commission:

"The Commission warns the public against paying money for 'coaching' courses in preparation for Federal civil-service examinations.

Schools which sell such courses under present conditions accept money under false pretenses. A purveyor of civil-service courses is now under indictment in Iowa for false representation. It is expected that other such cases of prosecution will follow.

Comparatively few appointments are being made in the Federal civil service. Vacancies which must be filled are filled by the transfer of those in the service or the reinstatement of those who have been in the service, wherever practicable.

It is seldom necessary to announce an examination. In most cases registers of eligibles exist as a result of examinations held during the past year. When an examination is announced, the applicants are usually hundreds of times in excess of the need.

Money paid for civil service coaching courses at this time might almost as well be thrown to the four winds.

MRS. FOLEY, LIBRARIAN, ATTENDED CONVENTION

Mrs. Elizabeth Foley attended the Library Round Table of the Michigan Library Association at Charlevoix, last Tuesday. Mrs. Earl Marshall accompanied Mrs. Foley.

About two hundred delegates were in attendance and Mrs. Mary E. Frankenhauer, State Librarian, of Lansing, presided. The forenoon program consisted of a symposium "Short Cuts and Time Savers." Discussion led by Mrs. Lena B. Cook, Public Library, Boyne City. Mr. George Curtis, Supt. of Schools of Alpena, delivered a stimulating address urging greater cooperation between the public library and the public school. The meeting then adjourned for luncheon at the Bartlett Hotel.

The afternoon session began with an address of welcome by Mr. Gerald F. Bush, Supt. of Schools, Charlevoix, followed by Miss Elizabeth Bonan, librarian from Flint, who held the interest of all present as she vividly reviewed "Some Recent Books of Interest."

Mrs. Foley declared the program well balanced, helpful and thoroughly worth while and wishes the entire Library Board might have been present to enjoy its benefits.

To Our Customers:

The newly enacted Revenue Act, effective June 21, 1932, compels every bank to charge each customer's account a tax of two cents per check, to be remitted monthly by the bank. No part of this tax is retained by the bank, but the tax in its entirety forwarded to the U. S. Revenue Collector.

The tax will be charged against the accounts at the time each check is paid, and thus be included with monthly statements and return of cancelled checks. Periodically customers will post the total amount of this monthly charge to their check stubs and their cash books. A tax of 10% on payments of safety deposit box rentals also became effective June 21st.

The cost of this tax to each customer is negligible. An account averaging one check per day makes the government tax for the month but 60 cents. Obviously the small amount of this tax would not warrant any customer withdrawing an unusual amount of cash to be carried in offices, stores, homes or pocket-books. There is the great danger of inviting injury and loss through burglary or hold-up attack, by misplacement, and the incentive to more readily spend undeposited cash. Furthermore, the amount of credit extended to the farmers and business men of the community is dependent on the amount of funds deposited with us. The co-operation of the public, therefore, is solicited by our bank upon whom is placed the burden of collecting and accounting for this tax in our community.

CLASS OF SEVENTEEN
preventive program is undertaken to cope with and offset present day conditions.

The unemployment question is a problem too little thought of in the past. It can be traced in part, back to our educational system. It was not long ago that the slogan of many educators was "To get an education and get out of doing manual labor." Those who sought an education wanted to get hold of a white collar job. Those jobs are now taken and many people with educations are forced to work as manual labor. Statistics show that though one boy in ten went to high school in 1900, five of those go now. That means that ten per cent of the competition of 32 years ago was high school trained, but 50 per cent of it is now. The person who keeps a job in a period of depression must be exceptionally good at his work. He has the best chance of success in life.

In closing my address I wish to express the foremost thought in my mind. Life here in high school has been pleasant, so pleasant that it tempts us to linger. But to accomplish much, we must be pushing forward. Our careers are not finished, just begun. As the gate swings shut on our high school years we must strive toward the road that stretches ahead. For us this is only a means to an end and not that end itself. With regret we leave our friendly faculty that has guided us so far, knowing that should the need arise, they still stand ready to help us.

Commencement.

The commencement program was held Friday night with Dr. William Gear Spencer, president of Hillsdale college as the speaker.

Miss McAllister played the professional which lead the class and speakers from the rear of the room up the center aisle to the platform. Invocation was given by Rev. H. Juhl of the Danish-Lutheran church.

"In the Garden of Tomorrow," by Deppen, was sung by Mrs. Milnes, Mrs. Jarmin, Mrs. Gohro, Miss McAllister, and Miss Hermann; Mrs. Clippert accompanied.

Supt. Burns extended a welcome to the parents and friends of the graduating class of 1932, and introduced Dr. Spencer.

Commencement Address.
Dr. Spencer, in the introductory of his commencement address, painted a picture of his early childhood when he with others of the family gathered evenings while his mother read to them biographies of outstanding characters, and explained how that that early knowledge had influenced his life in later years.

Taking that as a theme he selected two characters of the Revolutionary period, two of the Civil war period and two of modern times.

The speaker explained that principles conceived in the childhood and young manhood of Washington had been so indelibly instilled into his character that they had marked influence upon his later life. The thoroughness with which Washington had managed his military and civil affairs had been characteristic of his early training. As a civil engineer, his survey records are still maintained as marks of accuracy and competence and are accepted by modern day surveyors.

Benjamin Franklin was the second character used in his address. Dr. Spencer enumerated a number of his outstanding achievements. Early in life Dr. Franklin selected thirteen words that he studied and tried to practice their meanings through his lifetime. These words are as follows:

Silence.
Order.
Resolution.
Frugality.
Industry.
Sincerity.
Justice.
Moderation.
Cleanliness.
Tranquility.
Chastity.
Humility.

This list of words he kept constantly with him and endeavored to apply their meanings to his everyday activities.

Lincoln and General Grant were the two characters selected from the Civil war period. Speaking of the former Dr. Spencer said that 1800 volumes had been written about him.

In his early manhood Lincoln had read and studied the lives of Washington, Blackstone, Bunyan, Pilgrims Progress, Holy Writ and others, all of which helped in the formation of one of our world's greatest and most loved characters—Abraham Lincoln.

General Grant was a man who always went thru with his projects and would not be swayed from any plans, once set, that he believed could accomplish the ends he desired. When efforts were made by other officers to get him to change his plans for the Battle of the Wilderness, Grant said, "No. We'll fight it out along these lines if it takes all summer."

Examples offered by Dr. Spencer for modern times he selected Myron T. Herrick, of Ohio, ambassador to France, who, by his wisdom and honesty won the great love and admiration of the people of France. The other was William Howard Taft, former governor of the Philippine Islands, president of the U. S., and later Supreme Justice of the U. S., the latter the two greatest gifts that can come from the people of the United States. In his appointment as governor of the Philippines President Roosevelt said he wanted a man who was honest and would do the right thing by the people of the islands.

In all these character sketches Dr. Spencer showed how the backgrounds of their lives had inspired and influenced their later personalities and activities. He closed by extending good advice and good wishes to the members of the graduating class.

Receive Diplomas.
The class, dressed in caps and gowns, received their diplomas from their superintendent, R. R. Burns. He first expressed his appreciation and congratulations to the parents of the graduates who made it possible, by their sacrifice, to continue their children in school until they had completed their high school studies. "All parents," he said, "made sacrifices. He congratulated the community and said that "this school cannot be any better than the sentiment of the people of the community. The graduates received a fine ovation as the members arose to receive their certificates of graduation, eligible to enter the ranks of Grayling High School alumni.

DEPT. OF STATE
STATE NEWS BULLETIN

As a result of the staggered plan of part-time employment put into effect June 15, the Department of State is furnishing work to more persons than ever before during the slack summer months, while departmental payrolls, starting July 1, will be lower than during previous summers.

By the part-time plan of work, the department kept 33 workers upon the payrolls, who otherwise would have been dropped because of lack of work. The new system affects about 125 persons, whose duties for the most part are of a routine nature.

Those who have no dependents, work two out of three weeks. Married employees, whose husbands or wives are dependent upon them, work four out of every five weeks, while employees with more than one person wholly dependent upon them for support, work six out of every seven weeks. Four exceptions to this rule, have been made in cases of employees with six or seven dependents. These work full time.

Although the plan of staggering work has been in actual operation but a few days, inquiries have been made regarding the details of the plan with a view to adoption by other departments.

About 8,000 motorists will lose a truck or automobile license plate during 1932, it is estimated from department of state records. Duplicate plates are furnished by the department for $1 per plate.

From Jan. 1 to June 15, records disclose that 2,328 duplicate plates were issued to replace those lost. Experience in past years, has shown that about three times as many plates are lost during the last half of the year as during the first six months.

CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET SIX 445

ALFRED HANSON SERVICE STATION

Grayling, Mich.

BUYERS everywhere are comparing low-priced cars. Lifting hoods. Counting cylinders. And the result? An overwhelming verdict for the six, in preference to cars of fewer or more cylinders.

"SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!" And America backs up that conviction by purchasing more six-cylinder Chevrolets since January 1st, than the combined total of all fours and eights under $1000.

With more than six cylinders, you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous economy of gas, oil and upkeep—the greatest economy in today's motor car market. With less than six cylinders, you sacrifice the built-in smoothness that makes driving really enjoyable. But with a six—a Chevrolet Six—nothing is sacrificed. You get smoothness AND economy.

And power—60 horsepower. And speed—65 to 70 miles an hour, easily! And pick-up—from a standstill to 35 miles an hour in less than 7 seconds! You also get Free Wheeling; Synchromesh gear-shifting; big, spacious Fisher bodies.

So, when buying a new low-priced car, settle the question of cylinders RIGHT, and you can't go WRONG. Take America's word for it: "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!"

G. O. P. BIG SHOW
AT CHICAGO WAS

These Chicago, aunt, uncle and cousins knew what they wanted done with it. When James H. Garfield, of Ohio attempted to make a plan for the adoption of the majority plank, Chicago, in the galleries, refused to listen even a threat to clear the galleries was of no avail, and very little of what Mr. Garfield said was heard by any of the delegates to whom he was talking.

Dr. Butler in the Lincolnton. Chicago thought differently about it. Nicholas Murray Butler when he and his ten minutes on the platform, the gallery gods recognized him as their champion and the threat to adjourn the convention was not heeded to secure attention to his speech.

When Ogden Mills of New York told the vast audience why he favored the majority report, the gallery gods listened. They had to. His powerful voice over-awed them and demanded attention. Altogether those gallery gods did much to counteract the good impression made by the gracious welcome extended to the delegates by Democratic Mayor Cermak.

Speech followed speech, starting with a time limit of ten minutes, until every one who wanted to have his say had been given an opportunity. It was such a talk-fest as would have been expected at a national Democratic pow-wow, but the oratory lasting until one o'clock Thursday morning, did not change a single vote; and when the roll of states was called it resulted in the adoption of the majority report by 492 to 681.

Platform and Prohibition.
The party platform as worked out by the resolutions committee contains 28 planks. When it was read to the convention on Wednesday evening the delegates, and especially the wet Chicago visitors, evinced interest in only one of the 28. There was but little interest in the fact that the party stood for a reorganization of the government, in the interest of economy; that the party proposed to have government loan money to the states for emergency relief work; that it stood for a reduction of public expenditures; for the balancing of the national budget; for adherence to the gold standard and against currency inflation; for revision of the banking laws to protect depositors;

CERMAK, Mayor, was the message carried on the arm of every city policeman on duty in and around the Stadium.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth was much the lion of the occasion of the women, but Will Rogers got the majority of the attention from the women. At every session the women crashed the gates of the press stand, seeking Will's autograph, and he signed until he developed a severe case of writer's cramp and wore out all of his lead pencils.

for continuing assistance to co-operatives through the farm marketing act, but when the secretary, after an hour, got down to that one vital, all-important subject, prohibition, they were interested.

The majority of the resolutions committee proposed a plank that would modify the Eighteenth amendment permitting people of any state to decide for themselves whether they wished to be dry or wet. If dry the federal government to assist in the prevention of the manufacture of liquor in the state, or transportation into or the sale of liquor within the state. If wet the federal government to control and regulate the sale of liquor within the state. It implied that government control and regulation would be through the medium of government dispensaries to be established in wet territories only.

Other planks call for tax reduction; for a flexible tariff and the extension of tariff protection to cover natural resource industries, farms, forests, mines and oil wells; for a shorter work day and shorter work week, restriction of immigration, collective bargaining, freedom of speech and assembly; for a home loan discount bank system; for giving the federal power commission authority to regulate charges for electric current when transmitted between states, and others that are usually found in any party platform.
